PATINA. FOR BRASS TILES ONLY.

Patina matures with age; it may become darker or greener and develop a mellow color. This is intended to happen and it becomes more beautiful with time. If your brass tiles are used in a floor, bright time-worn paths may appear as the tiles are polished by your footsteps; these are beautiful rewards that come only with age.

In wet locations the patina may eventually show hints of soft green. Outdoors, the patina process is accelerated and ultimately an opaque green patina will develop.

Even if our tiles looks best with a natural patina, you can keep your tiles bright indefinitely by cleaning them regularly with a soft abrasive pad even in a wet location such as a shower, a Scotch Brite pad can be used. A soft abrassive or little brass polish will also restore the original brightness to patinated tiles.

Applying a light coat of paste wax will slow the natural patina process.

Actual samples may differ from new orders; at the end (6 months later) they all will be the same so please consider this to avoid rejections.
